

An explosion at a Lincoln iceworks on Saturday released 600lb. of liquid ammonia and affected four workmen engaged in a room where a new compressor was being erected. One of them, John Henry Cave, 36, of Jawbones Hill, Chesterfield, although burned, entered a room in order to switch off the motor and stop the flow of ammonia. He was afterwards taken to hospital and detained. The three other men were sent home.

News in Brief.

The Times (London, England), Monday, Jun 04, 1934; pg. 16; Issue 46771. (73 words)

Category: News in Brief

© Times Newspapers Limited

Gale Document Number:CS270215876